March 20, 2012 Full Day Conference Agenda

The New York State Department of Health (NYSDOH) is pleased to announce the 2012 Statewide Viral Hepatitis Conference to be held Tuesday, March 20, 2012 in New York City.

The purpose of this conference is to provide the most up-to-date information on hepatitis B and C epidemiology, diagnosis, management, treatment and prevention, which will assist health and human service providers to offer the most effective care to persons infected with HBV and HCV. It is our hope that, by promoting collaborations and the sharing of knowledge, ideas and experience, we can continue to make advances in the prevention and management of HBV and HCV infections.

By the end of the HBV and HCV conference, participants will be able to:

1. Discuss the impact of a national strategy on creating an effective HCV service delivery system.
2. Discuss the appropriate uses of Boceprevir and Telaprevir for HCV genotype 1 infected patients.
3. Describe the benefits of using social media web sites, such as Facebook and Twitter, to promote hepatitis awareness among the general public.
4. Identify the procedures conducted during the pre-treatment evaluation of a patient with chronic HBV.
5. Discuss the efficacy and safety of the Direct Acting Agents in the HIV/HCV coinfecting populations.
6. Identify the early signs of cirrhosis secondary to HBV and HCV.
7. Describe the core elements of the Extension for Community Health Care Outcomes (ECHO) model.
8. State the burden of hepatitis B and hepatitis C disease in New York City and New York State.
9. Describe new screening strategies to identify persons infected with HBV and HCV.
10. Describe the infrastructure necessary to support hepatitis care and treatment in primary care settings.
11. Describe ways to enhance access to health care services for substance users.
12. Describe the process for screening for and diagnosing hepatocellular carcinoma.

Conference Format

The 2012 Statewide Viral Hepatitis Conference takes place on Tuesday, March 20, 2012 beginning at 8 a.m. with registration. The opening plenary will begin at 9:15 a.m. followed by multiple break out sessions. The conference will end at 4 p.m.
