INTRODUCTION

This resource directory is intended for use by individuals seeking HIV/AIDS services. Included in this directory is a list of organizations funded by the New York State Department of Health AIDS Institute to provide HIV/AIDS services. Some organizations may provide additional HIV/AIDS services through other funding sources. The AIDS Institute is currently in the process of re-procuring a significant amount of state/federal funding and will produce another directory in 2010 as new contracts are awarded.

This directory is arranged by region, with each organization listed under the region it serves and then by the primary service it provides. Individuals using this directory should call agencies directly for more detailed information about the complete range of services offered. The organizations listed in a specific location may also provide services to people who live in neighboring communities and boroughs. Please call organizations directly for complete information about services.
Case Management

These programs offer a range of client-centered services that link clients with needed services, such as health care, dental, mental health, substance abuse services, entitlements, legal services, education, transportation, basic living needs, housing, and other supportive services. Case management activities include initial comprehensive assessment of the client’s needs and support systems; development of a comprehensive, individualized service plan; and periodic re-evaluation and revision of the plan.

Harm Reduction/Syringe Exchange

New York State has 17 syringe exchange programs authorized by the Commissioner of Health, with operations at over 40 sites. The 17 currently approved programs furnish approximately 2.5 to 3 million sterile syringes per year to individuals who cannot or will not abstain from illegal drugs. Within the context of harm-reduction oriented services, these programs engage their participants in HIV and hepatitis prevention. They also provide an important bridge to many other services including primary care and drug treatment.

HIV Counseling and Testing
HIV Counseling and Testing includes a one-on-one session with a counselor who will help the client to understand their risk for HIV, obtain their consent to collect a specimen (blood or oral fluid) for HIV antibody testing, and deliver the test results with an explanation of its implications. Counseling may include developing a risk reduction plan; assisting the client to develop skills to negotiate safer sex and reduce drug use risk taking behaviors; and referring the client to needed services. For those who have an HIV positive test result, the counselor will assist in linking the client to medical care and discuss a plan to notify partners of their possible exposure.

Medical Care - Designated AIDS Centers

Designated AIDS Centers (DACs) are State-certified, hospital-based programs that serve as the center of a continuum of hospital and community-based case management for people with HIV and AIDS. DACs with pediatric and obstetrical departments also provide specialized HIV care to infants, children and pregnant women. HIV-specific care standards developed for and used by DACs are intended to ensure uniformly high quality care.

Ryan White Care Network

Regional/neighborhood HIV care networks conduct HIV service planning and coordination. The networks are local associations of health care providers, community-based organizations, affected persons and persons living with HIV/AIDS who have a shared concern for achieving a comprehensive continuum of health and supportive services in a specific geographic area. The networks are responsible for defining the local epidemic and resources; planning and coordinating services; identifying service gaps and developing strategies to address those gaps; and raising public awareness about HIV/AIDS services, treatment and policy.

Harm Reduction/Syringe Exchange
New York State has 17 syringe exchange programs authorized by the Commissioner of Health, with operations at over 40 sites. The 17 currently approved programs furnish approximately 2.5 to 3 million sterile syringes per year to individuals who cannot or will not abstain from illegal drugs. Within the context of harm-reduction oriented services, these programs engage their participants in HIV and hepatitis prevention. They also provide an important bridge to many other services including primary care and drug treatment.

HIV Counseling and Testing

HIV Counseling and Testing includes a one-on-one session with a counselor who will help the client to understand their risk for HIV, obtain their consent to collect a specimen (blood or oral fluid) for HIV antibody testing, and deliver the test results with an explanation of its implications. Counseling may include developing a risk reduction plan; assisting the client to develop skills to negotiate safer sex and reduce drug use risk taking behaviors; and referring the client to needed services. For those who have an HIV positive test result, the counselor will assist in linking the client to medical care and discuss a plan to notify partners of their possible exposure.

Ryan White Care Network

Regional/neighborhood HIV care networks conduct HIV service planning and coordination. The networks are local associations of health care providers, community-based organizations, affected persons and persons living with HIV/AIDS who have a shared concern for achieving a comprehensive continuum of health and supportive services in a specific geographic area. The networks are responsible for defining the local epidemic and resources; planning and coordinating services; identifying service gaps and developing strategies to address those gaps; and raising public awareness about HIV/AIDS services, treatment and policy.

Harm Reduction/Recovery Readiness

Harm Reduction/Recovery Readiness services promotes the concept of "one stop shopping" for HIV infected injection drug users who would otherwise not access mental health services. Funded activities may include various combinations of mental health intake and assessment, mental health individual, group and family counseling, psychiatric evaluation and counseling, psychopharmacology visits, mental health support groups and follow-up. All services are provided by licensed mental health professionals.

Harm Reduction/Syringe Exchange

New York State has 17 syringe exchange programs authorized by the Commissioner of Health, with operations at over 40 sites. The 17 currently approved programs furnish approximately 2.5 to 3 million sterile syringes per year to individuals who cannot or will not abstain from illegal drugs. Within the context of harm-reduction oriented services, these programs engage their participants in HIV and hepatitis prevention. They also provide an important bridge to many other services including primary care and drug treatment.

HIV Counseling and Testing

HIV Counseling and Testing includes a one-on-one session with a counselor who will help the client to understand their risk for HIV, obtain their consent to collect a specimen (blood or oral fluid) for HIV antibody testing, and deliver the test results with an explanation of its implications. Counseling may include developing a risk reduction plan; assisting the client to develop skills to negotiate safer sex and reduce drug use risk taking behaviors; and referring the client to needed services. For those who have an HIV positive test result, the counselor will assist in linking the client to medical care and discuss a plan to notify partners of their possible exposure.

Medical Care - Designated AIDS Centers

Designated AIDS Centers (DACs) are State-certified, hospital-based programs that serve as the center of a continuum of hospital and community-based case management for people with HIV and AIDS. DACs with pediatric and obstetrical departments also provide specialized HIV care to infants, children and pregnant women. HIV-specific care standards developed for and used by DACs are intended to ensure uniformly high quality care.

Ryan White Care Network

Regional/neighborhood HIV care networks conduct HIV service planning and coordination. The networks are local associations of health care providers, community-based organizations, affected persons and persons living with HIV/AIDS who have a shared concern for achieving a comprehensive continuum of health and supportive services in a specific geographic area. The networks are responsible for defining the local epidemic and resources; planning and coordinating services; identifying service gaps and developing strategies to address those gaps; and raising public awareness about HIV/AIDS services, treatment and policy.

Medical Care - Designated AIDS Centers

Designated AIDS Centers (DACs) are State-certified, hospital-based programs that serve as the center of a continuum of hospital and community-based case management for people with HIV and AIDS. DACs with pediatric and obstetrical departments also provide specialized HIV care to infants, children and pregnant women. HIV-specific care standards developed for and used by DACs are intended to ensure uniformly high quality care.

Ryan White Care Network

Regional/neighborhood HIV care networks conduct HIV service planning and coordination. The networks are local associations of health care providers, community-based organizations, affected persons and persons living with HIV/AIDS who have a shared concern for achieving a comprehensive continuum of health and supportive services in a specific geographic area. The networks are responsible for defining the local epidemic and resources; planning and coordinating services; identifying service gaps and developing strategies to address those gaps; and raising public awareness about HIV/AIDS services, treatment and policy.

HIV Counseling and Testing

HIV Counseling and Testing includes a one-on-one session with a counselor who will help the client to understand their risk for HIV, obtain their consent to collect a specimen (blood or oral fluid) for HIV antibody testing, and deliver the test results with an explanation of its implications. Counseling may include developing a risk reduction plan; assisting the client to develop skills to negotiate safer sex and reduce drug use risk taking behaviors; and referring the client to needed services. For those who have an HIV positive test result, the counselor will assist in linking the client to medical care and discuss a plan to notify partners of their possible exposure.

Harm Reduction/Syringe Exchange

New York State has 17 syringe exchange programs authorized by the Commissioner of Health, with operations at over 40 sites. The 17 currently approved programs furnish approximately 2.5 to 3 million sterile syringes per year to individuals who cannot or will not abstain from illegal drugs. Within the context of harm-reduction oriented services, these programs engage their participants in HIV and hepatitis prevention. They also provide an important bridge to many other services including primary care and drug treatment.

HIV Counseling and Testing

HIV Counseling and Testing includes a one-on-one session with a counselor who will help the client to understand their risk for HIV, obtain their consent to collect a specimen (blood or oral fluid) for HIV antibody testing, and deliver the test results with an explanation of its implications. Counseling may include developing a risk reduction plan; assisting the client to develop skills to negotiate safer sex and reduce drug use risk taking behaviors; and referring the client to needed services. For those who have an HIV positive test result, the counselor will assist in linking the client to medical care and discuss a plan to notify partners of their possible exposure.

PARTNER SERVICES

The Partner Services Program provides an immediate link between health care providers, persons diagnosed with HIV and their sexual and/or needle-sharing partners. The Partner Services Program can facilitate partner notification and early testing while maintaining confidentiality of all individuals involved. Partner Services staff work with patients to develop a plan to notify their partners. Based on the patient’s needs, staff can notify potentially exposed partners anonymously, as well as help patients who want to tell their partners on their own.
