

Millennium Collaborative Care, Manager, Behavioral Health Projects

Many partners for our 3aai Crisis Stabilization project do not currently capture Medicaid numbers due to the fact that they are Prevention/Intervention agencies and due to the state of mind folks are in when they intervene in a crisis situation. I am wondering if others are facing this same issue and if so what suggestions they have? Thanks!

Question by Andrea J. Wanat

2

On october 23, 2015 at 09:11 - 121 views, 2 replies, 4 followers

One of our innovative partnering organizations that have been pairing crisis workers with paramedics are also struggling with the same issue. It is challenging for crisis workers to ask someone for their insurance information when they are supporting a person in acute crisis. They only recently began trying to include this assessment in their workflows so I don't yet have any specific details about how it is going. It speaks to the challenge of actually collecting patient engagement numbers using a CIN number for this project.

By Damara Gutnick, 3 months ago

0

Yes Damara....I appreciate your response and will share any further information as we work through this.

By Andrea J. Wanat, 3 months ago

1

Reply to this contribution...