

Why they don't belong in youth-rated movies, period.

Nearly 20% of 11th Graders smoke.

And a decade's worth of research says smoking on screen is the single biggest reason.

Tell the CEOs of Disney, General Electric, News Corp., Sony, Time Warner and Viacom to get smoking out of the G, PG and (mainly) PG-13 movies that young people see most: Clip and mail each of the messages below.

Last year, mainstream movies delivered 6.6 billion tobacco impressions to theater audiences of all ages.

This is your chance to make six equally lasting impressions of your own.

Smoking in movies kills in real life.
