PrEP YOURSELF AGAINST HIV.
Pre-exposure prophylaxis or PrEP is a daily pill that people take so they can reduce their worry about getting HIV.

PrEP is for people who are smart about HIV

You may want to consider PrEP if you:
- have multiple or anonymous sex partners.
- engage in sexual activity at sex parties or other high-risk venues.
- trade sex for money, drugs, or housing.
- had at least one STI in the previous 12 months.
- use recreational mood-altering substances during sex.
- inject substances, including illicit drugs and hormones.
- have sex with partners who engage in any of the above.

Facts about PrEP

- HIV testing is done before starting PrEP because PrEP is only for people who are HIV negative.
- You can get help for side effects, if you have them.
- PrEP involves HIV testing every three months, periodic STI testing and appointments with a medical provider.
- Many insurance plans, including Medicaid, cover PrEP. Assistance may also be available if you are uninsured or if your co-pay or deductible is too high.
If you start PrEP

• It’s important to take the medicine as directed.
• Condoms provide additional protection against sexually transmitted infections.
• Your provider is available to discuss other ways to protect yourself.

Take an important step to reduce your worry about HIV.

Ask a medical provider about PrEP.

For additional information about PrEP, including a directory of medical providers who prescribe PrEP, and information about resources to pay for PrEP, call 1-800-541-AIDS English, 1-800-233-SIDA Spanish, or visit www.health.ny.gov/PrEP.